Tony Porter was fascinating, synergistic, phenomenal, and moving. As stated by one of the students, “He is the truth.” Truth indeed, Tony delivered his volcanic words of wisdom forcing the audience to analyze his every word. His oration of respect between the sexes and the shaping of the male culture in our society was powerful. His gripping and tenacious delivery continued to dance in the minds of the students far after his departure.

Tony brings a strong composition of the importance of non-violent and non-labeling behaviors and uses simplistic examples of how destructive behaviors can originate from such. He gracefully works his audience by keeping them involved throughout and concludes with a smooth culmination of the honoring of women and the role men can play to preserve that honor.

As Chairperson for the School of Criminal Justice at Monroe College, Tony Porter brought to our institution a message that is often ignored in the field of criminal justice and for this, I am thankful. Every criminal justice program should acknowledge the genesis of criminality against women and how to prevent it. All current learners and future leaders need to hear the message that “A Call To Men” have to deliver, no matter the discipline.
